1. A few thoughts on this

Social consensus is EVERYTHING

Social consensus trumps everything else even laws even Muh Constitution

This means the media (which has the power to build social consensus) has more power than anything else

2. Here's the most obvious/simple example I think

If you haven't noticed today your entire society revolves around fighting "racism"

Your immigration policy is designed around fighting "racism" trillions of dollars are spent fighting "racism"

3. What the fuck is "racism" even nobody can really define it

The word did not even exist 100 years ago

Nowhere in Muh Constitution does it mention "racism"

Yet the media has repeated it over and over so consistently for so long that every1 agrees "racism" is the biggest evil

4. Your entire society and culture and political process revolves around a new meme concept created and installed by the media over the past 4 generations

At this point even if Muh Constitution literally said "racism is fucking awesome and must be enforced" nobody would care

5. So anyways what matters is social consensus not words on papers

As a matter of fact you can view the entire electoral process and Muh Constitution as simply tools for working out and achieving social consensus

6. Where I'm going with this is that if the media can force a certain critical mass of social consensus around X then X is what society will follow

Depending on the X it will simply take different amounts of time and propaganda intensity

7. In this particular case right now they are trying to achieve a critical mass of social consensus and social pressure around X = "Biden is the president now, it's over" in a very short period of time so they are propagandizing very aggressively

8. They are trying to bypass the electoral process (which is simply a tool for achieving social consensus) and simply impose the social consensus they want through brute force

If they fail it's because people resisted and because people had internet as a tool for communication

9. Anyways, social consensus is everything

Today the freedom to be very gay and suck many dicks is a holy value and this is because the media built social consensus around it

If Muh Constitution said "Citizens shall not be gay or suck dick" nobody would care at this point

10. Social consensus is everything and the mass media has the power to impose social consensus

Which is why the media is everything

Which is why they want to censor the internet to keep people from bypassing the media

Which is why free speech needs to be guaranteed online
